

Why Fintech?

How Your Business Benefits from Touch-Free Payments

Now more than ever, you understand the importance of keeping your customers and team safe, and your business running efficiently. Through Fintech autopay for alcohol deliveries, your workforce can practice critical social distancing procedures without sacrificing the service for which your team is known.

Keep Your Workforce Safe

Receiving payment for your alcohol invoices through electronic autopay allows your team to practice necessary social distancing procedures and reinforces the safety of your workforce, suppliers, and retailers as you work across the three-tiers. Fintech has seen close to a 500% increase nationwide in retailer requests for autopay services as distributors move to safer, touch-free practices for their employees and customers.

Eliminate Cash, Checks, Money Orders, and Escrow Accounts

By utilizing autopay, you are not only adding a layer of protection for your employees and customers by going touch-free, but you also reduce security risks associated with collecting and managing large amounts of cash or other forms of manual payment received at the time of delivery.

Speed Up Deliveries

Drivers and sales reps need to not only maintain proper social distancing practices, but they need to move through deliveries quickly. Through autopay, your team will never waste time chasing or collecting payments for COD or term invoices. Autopay reduces delivery times by an average of 15 minutes per stop, getting your drivers out of parking lots and back on the road without waiting for an owner or manager to issue payment.

Decrease Invoice Inquiries from your Retailers

Fintech also grants retailers access to an inclusive online portal allowing them to review line-item invoice data and history, thus decreasing the calls, texts, or emails that your sales reps and accounting team field.

Save Time and Money at the End of Each Day

Autopay reduces end-of-day expenses associated with driver check-in, payment processing, and deposit preparations.

Adopt Autopay for Long-Term Benefits

Implementing Fintech autopay moves your business one step closer to a completely touch-free process that provides safety and security for all those who count on you. Fintech is making it easy for your retailers to transition with you by offering electronic payment services for free.
